Introduction

The latest edition of the IHS Banyan LAN User's Guide was prepared to help users navigate and operate within the Microsoft Windows 3.1 environment. Most chapters provide a brief overview of the Windows application or application group, offer step-by-step instructions on how to perform basic tasks, and list additional sources of reference. Appendix A provides information about storing files on local and network drives. Appendix B shows you how to access and use the Tektronix Color Printer. To help you follow and learn the material, screen captures, tables, notes, and side captions have been placed throughout this manual.

For additional information and instructions, use the on-line help that is available in most applications, or obtain software manuals and other training material from your ADP Coordinator.